

Dave the Ghost and the three little children.

Once upon a time there three little children. They each wanted the biggest and best castle. The first child, Buster built his castle out of Lego. He said to himself, "My castle is the best!" Out jumped Dave the Ghost with a hammer and smashed Buster's castle right down.

The second child, Scruffy built his castle out of playdough. He said to himself, "My castle is perfect." Out wiggled Dave the Ghost to squish Scruffy's castle.

The third child, Bandit built his house out of metal. He said to himself, "My castle is good." Out span Dave the Ghost who pushed and pushed and tried and tried to destroy the metal castle but he couldn't. Dave said, "hmmm, I've had enough. I give up. I'm tired!" And off he went.

Bandit lets Buster and Scruffy come and have a sleepover at his metal castle. They played and ate some tomatoes and bananas and lived happily ever after.
