

The Three Little Koalas and the Grumpy Unicorn.

Once upon a time there were little Koalas. They decided to go to the moon. The first little Koala thought he would make his spaceship out of paper towels. But someone was watching from the hill. It was the Grumpy Unicorn. He galloped down the hill and stamped his foot. He said, "Koala's let me in." The first Koala said, "No way, not by the fluff of my ears." The Grumpy Unicorn stamped his foot again and the magic from his born blew the spaceship away.

The second little Koala decided to make his spaceship out of rainbow pancakes. The Grumpy Unicorn smelt the pancakes. He galloped over and stamped his foot. He said, "Koala's let me in." The second little Koala said, "No way, not by the fluff of my ears." The Grumpy Unicorn stamped his foot and the magic from his horn helped him eat all of the pancake spaceship.

The third little Koala decided to make his spaceship out of metal. The Grumpy Unicorn came again. He said, "Koala's let me in." The third Koala said, "No way, not by the fluff of my ears." He stamped his foot again but the spaceship didn't break. The Unicorn said sorry to the Koalas and they all went to the moon together. The end.
